Incident at Oaky Creek Coal Mine

Glencore confirms that an incident involving an inflow of water from surface water storage to the Oaky Creek coal underground mine was reported yesterday.

The water inflow was into a non-production area of the mine.

There was a controlled withdrawal of personnel from the underground mine. Production has been suspended temporarily while we coordinate removal of the water, and the area is returned to normal.

There were no injuries to personnel and the relevant regulators have been notified.
